Better to Have Stones

There was an old man who had a lot of money, but he did not like to spend it. He always said, "I don't buy meat and fruit because I can eat bread and drink water. I don't buy new clothes because I can wear my old trousers and my old shirt. If I spend my money, I shall have no more. If I hide the money, I shall always have it."

So he put his money in a box in the ground under a big tree. Every Sunday he went to the tree, opened the box and looked at his money. He did the same thing for many years; he never spent his money but always put some more into the box.

One day he came to the tree, but he box was not there.

"Oh, my money! My money!" he shouted. "Where is my box of money? Somebody has taken my money! What shall I do without it?"

The people heard him and they began to ask him questions, and the old man told them his story.

"It was a bad man who took your money," said a woman, and we shall try to find him."

"But what shall I do without my money if you do not find the man?" asked the old man.

The three brothers

A man had three sons and he loved them all very much. He had no money, but the house in which he lived was a good one.

"To which of my three boys shall I leave my house?" thought the old man. "They are all good sons to me and I want to be good to them, too. "

Of course, he could sell the house and then give the money to the boys, but nobody wanted to do this.

Not only the three boys, but their father, their grandfather, and their great-grandfather had lived in it. It was their home; they knew and loved every room, every window, every corner of it, and they could not sell it to other people.

So the old man said to the boys, "All of you must go out into the world. Each can choose a trade and learn it well.

In a year we shall meet here together, and he who has learned his trade best shall have the house. Do you agree? "

"Yes," said his sons, "that's right".

"And the eldest said, "I think I will become a builder. That is the kind of work I like best."

"And I," said the second, "have always wanted to make clothes."

"And I," said the third, "want most of all to become a gardener.

"They agreed to come back in a year, and then they all went away.

Soon people began to talk about a young builder, a young tailor and a young gardener whose work was very good. Their father was glad to hear that.

When the father saw his sons again a year later, he said, "You all have learned your trades very well. The house is

About badgers

A badger is a very interesting animal, but you can see him only in the evening, when it is dark. Then the badger comes out of his underground home to eat.

The father badger is a big animal, as big as a cat. He is covered with grey fur, his legs are short and very strong, he can dig very well. His head is white with little black fur on the top.

Badgers sleep during the day, and all winter too. In summer they come out in the dark when they want to eat. They eat berries, apples, and sometimes little birds or mice.

Badgers are very clean animals. When they come out from their underground homes, they begin to wash their faces with their front paws, then they comb their long fur with their paws. Beatrix Potter

Many years ago there lived a small girl in a large house in London. Her name was Beatrix. Her parents did not ask other boys and girls to come and play with their daughter.

Beatrix had only animals for her friends. She had dogs, cats, frogs, and a rabbit. Beatrix played with her animals and talked to them. The animals understood the girl and loved her very much. Beatrix wrote stories about animal friends and told those stories to her little brother, her parents and their friends. She drew pictures for her stories too.

Time went on. Beatrix was not a little girl, but she still wrote stories about animals and drew pictures for those stories. She knew her animals so well that they were like people to her.

In 1900 Beatrix published her first book. The title of the book was "The Tale of Peter Rabbit". Then she wrote a lot of little books and made pictures for them. Children read Beatrix Potter's books and liked them very much.

My Naughty Little Sister.

One autumn when I was a little girl and my sister was a very little girl too, the weather was rainy. It was October. It was very cold and it rained every day. When we went out, we put on our raincoats.

But my little sister liked to walk in the water. One day she walked in the water, and her feet got wet. So she caught a bad cold, and she had red eyes.

"You can't go out," said my mother. "You must stay at home and be a good girl."

But my sister did not like that.

"I want to go out in the rain! I want to go out!"

"Look at the pictures in your book," said my mother.

"I don't want to! I want to go out in the rain!"

My little sister was very naughty. Then my mother gave her some old books and the scissors, and my little sister began to cut out pictures. She cut out a dog and a cat, a brown bear and a red fox. She cut out some flowers and many other pictures.

Then she saw a big box on a chair. She opened the box and saw a beautiful dress with pretty blue flowers on it. My naughty little sister wanted to cut out only one flower. She did so. She liked it
